AND COLD IN THE HEAD

relieved instantly by one application of
Birney's Catarrh Powder

Rev. FATHER CLARK, S. J., to the Rev. Bishop of Columbus, Ohio, writes:
"I cannot say enough for your Powder. It has cured me of an annoying catarrh of the nose which has been with me for many years. I have tried everything else, but nothing has done it but your Powder. I am delighted with it. All my friends who have a cold in the head or a catarrh of the nose, are quite enthusiastic over it. The powder is very pleasant to use, and it is a good thing for the family to have others who are suffering. I will do anything to speak a good word for the remedy to help others who are suffering."
M. J. FENNER, Canadian U. S. Appraiser's Store, Chicago, writes:
"Catarrh—Being almost entirely deaf for a number of years, and getting so worse from many accidents which I tried, was induced by a friend to try Dr. Birney's Catarrh Powder for my deafness. Have recovered my hearing entirely, so that I can now hear a watch tick plainly, it being held 10 inches from my ear. I think it is a positive cure for deafness and have recommended it to many of my friends and can say I have never heard of a case where it has failed to relieve."

If we were asked the reason why "VIAMI" performs such wonderful cures, we would be honest, and say, "We don't know." Ask a scientist why an apple invariably falls downward, and he would say it was due to the law of Gravitation.

That is about all he could tell you. It is no more natural for bodies to gravitate toward the center of the earth than it is for "VIAMI" to cure the diseases peculiar to women. It is not a drug, but a food, which nourishes and strengthens the affected parts, thereby enabling nature to throw off the disease. Our Health Book sent free.

IT DAZZLES THE EYE.

NEW SPRING DRESS GOODS IN FORTY-TWO SHADES.

Yet Fashion's Attempts to Adorn Lovely Woman Are Like Sounding Brass and Tinkling Cymbal—Still They Must Be in the Latest Style.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April 12.—I had thought that human ingenuity could not invent anything new in the way of crepons, but today I find an entirely new lot of designs and effects. These are dimpled silk crepons, and how pretty they are one has but to think of the dimples on baby's cheeks to know. These are soft and have a delicate surface that with every movement breaks into dimples. One watches it in delighted wonder. Nothing ing can be prettier in woven goods. Nothing aside from the dimpled crepon can surpass it except a baby's pink, round cheek.

There is another crepon of wool warp and silk woof. This drapes in a manner to delight the soul of an artist. There are all silk crepons, but I do not think them quite as pretty as those having an admixture of wool. There are all wool and cotton crepons. To see so many styles and colors sets one thinking that nothing else will be worn, but there will be for there are the soft and pliable wool barettes, semitransparent and with indented effects.

The new lightweight tweeds and chevots show new weavings, of which the natte and herringbone are favorites. Hopsack is also popular. The fine diagonal chevot in jet black is one of the most ladylike and genteel gowns one can have. In one house a black diagonal chevot was made with a plain five gored skirt, with five rolls of moire silk around the bottom. This made a beautiful trimming. The waist was in the form of a postilion jacket, with moire revers and moire bow, with point lace ends shorter than usual, scarcely reaching the waist line. The sleeves were balloon puffs, drooping down below the elbows. The milliner's rolls and folds in a satin or moire bid fair to be a favorite trimming on all woolen goods.

I saw a coat for a young lady, which was part of a suit trimmed in this manner, which struck me as being very stylish. The coat was of seal brown chevot serge, with three rows of satin folds in mordore shade. The underskirt was of seal brown, and the open draped overskirt was of mordore brown cloth, stitched. The sleeves to the jacket were of the cloth. The jacket was very full in the back, and the front was finished with a ruffle of brown ribbon edged with gold.

There are several novelties in summer silks this week. Japanese taffetie is one of them. This comes in 42 different shades in fancy stripes, and they are lovely. These are washable, and one could scarcely imagine a daintier thing for pretty summer gowns. The black japan silks are offered in a firmer weave, though they are light and most comfortable for ordinary summer gowns. There are some new effects in changeable peau de soie. This is the richest silk we have by all odds. The moire antiques surpass themselves, and there was one pattern I noticed where the undershade was a frosty green, with white waves upon it. In gaudy it looks like moonlit waves, with a silvery sheen over the whole almost metallic in its brilliancy.

Let us leave the richness of grand toilets to the mothers and turn to the simplicity of the babies. Nothing is too fine and soft for them. Hand sewing is preferred for the pretty ones. Nainsook and soft linen lawns are the proper material. Less embroidery is seen on their clothes and more hemstitching and feather stitching. The hems are made about three inches deep and are hemstitched, sometimes in a fancy penwork pattern half an inch deep. Boys of the same washable material are set on for trimming in preference to ribbon. Nearly all the slips are made very plainly, with the chief beauty in the fine and even hand sewing. Wadded wrappers made of cheesecloth, tufted with wool threads, are among the necessities. These are feather stitched or herringboned all around. They are infinitely more comfortable for a baby than the old blanket they used to wear, which is now a thing of the past. All garments for wee babies are high in the neck and have long sleeves.

Her Hobby Is Tramping.

The Tennessee authoress, Will Allen Dromgoolle, has a hobby. It is walking—"tramping," she calls it. Nine or ten miles of mountain walking is her daily constitutional when at her country home. A short, ordinary skirt, a blouse waist and a soft, gray felt hat with a history form her walking costume. The history part comes in with the only ornament of the hat—a bullet hole of goodly size. Miss Dromgoolle has made a study of the coal mines of the Tennessee mountains. When the war with the miners began on Coal creek, she hurried up there to see all she could of it. "Every one of the state authorities was very nice to me," she adds in telling the story, "but if I wanted to see things for myself I could not be sheltered any more than they were. I messed with them, and one evening at supper a bullet went through the hat on my head."

Mrs. Clara Hoyt Burleigh.

Mrs. Clara Hoyt Burleigh, the new president of the Woman's Relief corps of Massachusetts, is a daughter of George Hoyt, M. D., prominent as a physician and in antislavery times the friend and coworker of Phillips, Garrison and other heroes. She is the sister of Colonel George H. Hoyt, known as the young lawyer from Boston who volunteered to defend John Brown, going alone and unprotected to Harper's Ferry, Va., sent for that purpose by Governor Andrew. Mrs. Burleigh was born in Athol, where she now resides. She is a woman of education and rare gifts, a musician of thorough cultivation and an artist of excellence. She is the wife of Judge Henry M. Burleigh, an active Grand Army man, judge advocate of the department of Massachusetts.—Boston Woman's Journal.

Atlanta Women Organize.

About 30 of the leading women of this city interested in church and benevolent work met recently and organized a Woman Suffrage association. Mrs. McLendon, a member of an aristocratic family, was elected president. Their idea is to push the question of woman suffrage so as to have a good report to make to the national association, which holds its next meeting in this city. Within a month there will be woman suffrage associations organized in every city in the state. The preachers of this city have taken a decided stand against the movement, which only challenges the opposition of the women.—Atlanta Dispatch.

Women's Grievances.

An English periodical conducted exclusively for women has been propounding this question to its readers, "What is women's greatest grievance?" The seven most popular grievances and the "comparative violence" of each are shown in the following table:

1—"One law for a man and another for a woman"..... 37

2—"Numerical preponderance of women"..... 19

3—"Absence of good servants"..... 14

4—"Smallness of women's wages compared with men's"..... 12

5—"That men refuse to take women seriously"..... 9

6—"The overcrowded state of the female labor market"..... 8

7—"The absence of a grievance"..... 5

The Women's Movement in Germany.

The women's movement in Germany is making great progress. The congress called by the lady delegates to the World's fair at Chicago met in Berlin recently, and it is the intention of the ladies to form a union of all the charitable and humane societies in Germany in order that the work of the societies may be conducted upon a broader plan. A thorough exchange of views between the different societies is proposed, and it seems likely that the movement will have a decidedly beneficial effect upon the female mind in Germany.—Berlin Correspondent.

One of Europe's Beauties.

Princess Yousouppoff, who has just died at her home near Paris, was once one of the most beautiful women in Europe. At a very early age she was a widow and refused many offers of marriage. However, when more than 60 years old she fell in love with a young man named Chauveau and became his wife. Two years ago he died, and the inconsolable widow retired to her country home and there passed away. Princess Yousouppoff had an income of $250,000 annually, and her turquoises are said to be the most wonderful in the world.—Paris Journal.

Wife and Husband.

Hitherto it has been the custom to speak of "husband and wife," but it is quite obvious that the tendency of recent legislation is to invert the phrase. This tendency will doubtless be greatly intensified "in the good time coming" when the women, who constitute a considerable majority of the population of the United Kingdom, obtain the suffrage and outvote the men, inasmuch as the "one woman one vote" will have a majority of 7 per cent over the other sex when "one man one vote" is the universal rule.—London Standard.

He loved her.
She loved him.
They loved each other.
But her father objected because the young man was almost a total stranger.
The time had come when the youth must ask the father for his daughter, and he feared to go to him.
He held a long conference with his beloved.
He told her he did not want to ask her father.
"George, dear," she asked in a tremulous whisper, "how much are you worth?"
"A million dollars, darling," he responded proudly.
Her face shone in the twilight.
"Then you don't have to ask him," she said, with simple trust. "Let him know that, and he will ask me."
And George gave the old man a tip.—Detroit Free Press.

A Real Nice Fellow.
Strawber—Do you suppose Clara Penrose cares anything for me?
Singerly—Well, she said some pretty nice things about you last night when I was there.

Strawber—Did she? What were they?
Singerly (seriously)—For one thing, she said you were a fine dancer. It was such a comfort, she said, to find a man who really danced well.

Strawber—I'm sure I'm glad she likes my dancing. I've spent enough time at it.
Singerly—Then she said your manners were perfect. It was a pleasure to go anywhere with you, she said, because she felt so perfectly secure with you and sure of you.

Strawber (delighted)—Gracious! I had no idea she thought so much of me as that. Did she say anything else?

Singerly—Oh, yes. She spoke about your conversation. In the light society talk of the day she thinks you have no equal, and then you are so full of tact, and your clothes were always so stylish, so neat, without being too extreme. Oh, she gave you a great send-off, old man.

Strawber (beside himself)—I should say she did. I must cultivate that girl. Beautiful, rich, accomplished. What more could a man want in a wife? I have always (complacently) fancied her, but now I think the feeling is even deeper than that.

Singerly (warningly)—Don't let it get too deep, old man. I didn't tell you all.

Strawber—Didn't you? What more was there?

Singerly—She wound up by saying that, in fact, you were just the sort of a fellow that no girl would ever think of marrying.—Exchange.

Greatly Surprised.

Lieutenant Blank of the army is 6 feet 4 inches tall and tips the scale at 250 pounds. He was stationed for many years in Washington, attached to a scientific bureau of the government, his writings being well known to the scientific world.

Much of his writing was done evenings at home, and he would sometimes carry home necessary reference books and return them to his office at will. One morning he gathered together several, none of them very small, and putting them under his arm started for his office.

In the course of his walk he was brought face to face with a very black little negro, who, with arms akimbo, chin dropped and his shining black eyes filled with wonder, had glanced himself directly in front of Lieutenant Blank.

Before the gentleman had time to do more than take in this apparition of darkness the little "pickaninny" had thrown back his head, so as to be able to gaze up into the lieutenant's face, and in a tone of comical amazement exclaimed:

"Gude gracious, mister, is you gwine to school?"—Youth's Companion.

An Unreliable Adage.

"Doan' fohgit," said Uncle Eben to some Foggy Bottom boys who were playing craps, "dat curses laik chickens'll come home ter roost."

"Maybe dey will," said one of the gamblers, "but I hab knowledge ob some chickens dat ain' gwinter come home ter roos', not no moh since night befoh las'."

Uncle Eben looked sharply at the speaker, and turning away with a reminiscent smile said:

"Dat's so, chile, I recken. Dar am chickens dat won' git back ter roos'—not 'nless dey comes back ez ghos' chickens. An I nebber am hyud ob no henhouse sukerstition yit."—Washington Star.
